

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are undernourished has declined from 1.1 billion to 800 million.

But the world's population is growing, and the number of people who are undernourished is still too high. The world's population is projected to reach 9 billion by 2050.

By 2050, the number of people who are undernourished is projected to reach 1 billion. This is a dramatic increase from the current level of 800 million.

The world's population is growing, and the number of people who are undernourished is still too high. The world's population is projected to reach 9 billion by 2050.

By 2050, the number of people who are undernourished is projected to reach 1 billion. This is a dramatic increase from the current level of 800 million.

The world's population is growing, and the number of people who are undernourished is still too high. The world's population is projected to reach 9 billion by 2050.

By 2050, the number of people who are undernourished is projected to reach 1 billion. This is a dramatic increase from the current level of 800 million.

The world's population is growing, and the number of people who are undernourished is still too high. The world's population is projected to reach 9 billion by 2050.

By 2050, the number of people who are undernourished is projected to reach 1 billion. This is a dramatic increase from the current level of 800 million.

The world's population is growing, and the number of people who are undernourished is still too high. The world's population is projected to reach 9 billion by 2050.

By 2050, the number of people who are undernourished is projected to reach 1 billion. This is a dramatic increase from the current level of 800 million.

The world's population is growing, and the number of people who are undernourished is still too high. The world's population is projected to reach 9 billion by 2050.

By 2050, the number of people who are undernourished is projected to reach 1 billion. This is a dramatic increase from the current level of 800 million.

The world's population is growing, and the number of people who are undernourished is still too high. The world's population is projected to reach 9 billion by 2050.

By 2050, the number of people who are undernourished is projected to reach 1 billion. This is a dramatic increase from the current level of 800 million.

The world's population is growing, and the number of people who are undernourished is still too high. The world's population is projected to reach 9 billion by 2050.

By 2050, the number of people who are undernourished is projected to reach 1 billion. This is a dramatic increase from the current level of 800 million.

